INTRODUCTION

The first directory covering the field of library services for the handicapped in Australia was published by the National Library in 1977 with the title, Library Services for the Visually and Physically Handicapped in Australia : a Directory. It listed 44 libraries and included only limited information about their services and collections. Library services for the handicapped in Australia have undergone rapid change since 1977. The information in this new directory reflects these changes.

This second edition of the Directory of Library Services for the Handicapped in Australia has three objectives:

- (1) to document the collections and services available to handicapped readers in Australia
- (2) to facilitate resource sharing between organisations serving handicapped readers, and
- (3) to encourage co-operative collection development among these organisations.

Questionnaires on which this directory is based were sent out in 1981 to almost 1000 organisations. These included voluntary agencies specifically serving handicapped readers, State libraries, public libraries and university and college libraries. Responses were received from 233 organisations stating they provided some form of library service for the handicapped. Organisations with fewer than 100 titles available for handicapped readers are not included in this new directory.

Many tertiary educational institutions returned questionnaires advising that they did not have collections specifically for use by handicapped readers. However, many have extensive collections of audio materials (taped lectures etc.) and other special resources that could be used by handicapped readers. These organisations have been included with a note stating that the materials held have been produced or purchased for students generally and not specifically for handicapped students.

Arrangement of the directory

Entries are arranged alphabetically under State or Territory, in the following order:

- A - Australian Capital Territory
- N - New South Wales
- Q - Queensland
- S - South Australia
- T - Tasmania
- V - Victoria
- W - Western Australia
- X - Northern Territory

Within each State or Territory the entries are numbered sequentially. Numbers have been allocated in a sequence which will facilitate the inclusion of new organisations in future editions of the directory.

Each entry has a unique identification code consisting of a State code and a number. This code is the mechanism by which information in the entries can be accessed via the directory indexes.

Indexes

Indexes of special resources and services and organisation names will be found at the end of the volume. The Special Resources and Services Index covers the following areas:

- Foreign language materials
- Music materials
- Producers of special format materials, and
- Student materials

Content of the entries

The content of the entries has been expanded in this edition to provide more detailed information about collections: including the total number of titles, children's and student materials, access and special services. Each entry consists of standard data elements.

Information is as supplied by contributors. In some cases an attempt was made to resolve apparent inconsistencies or to elicit additional data. Users and contributors are invited to report any errors or additional information.

New editions of the directory will be published by the National Library from time to time. Any relevant organisation not included in this edition should notify known to be on sale in Australia.

Cliff Law

"Inside the case is stamped a maker's serial number which will enable you to trace the watch. There is, too, a number very faintly scratched, and my jewellers' friends think it was done by a firm which repaired the watch at some time. I am informed that it is the usual practice of watch repairers to maintain a card index system in which is recorded data covering the customer's name and address, when the watch is received and when delivered and posted to the customer. You might have inquiries made of all the jewellers and watchmenders in Australia, excepting South Australia, which has already been covered."

Bony paused to light a cigarette. Neither Bolt nor Staley spoke.

"With the watch, which was thrust into the pocket of the dead man's light raincoat, I found a ring, a signet ring. Two pairs of keen eyes looked at the ring."
